Comments From: Bill "W.G." Apgood (billsr@amiusa.com)

Yes, I have aged from the 60's, but in that process I've become much kinder to myself, and less critical of myself. I've even become my own best friend. I have lost loved ones who have passed and I have seen too many dear friends leave this world way too soon; before they understood the great freedom that comes with aging.

Whose business is it if I choose to read or play on my computer until 4 AM, or sleep until noon? I will dance with myself to those wonderful tunes of the 50's & 60's, and perhaps at the same time, weep over my lost love. I will walk the beach in a swim suit that is slightly stretched over my little midriff, and I will dive into the waves with abandon if I choose, even in spite of those pitying glances from those water drinking athletic jet setters. They too, will Age! I know, I am sometimes forgetful, but then again some of life is better forgotten, but I will always remember those special moments.

Sure, over the years my heart has been broken. How can your heart not break when you lose a loved one, or when you watch your children suffer? But broken hearts are what give us character, strength and an understanding of compassion. A heart never broken is just too pristine, too sterile and will never know the joy of being imperfect.

I am so BLESSED to have lived long enough to have my hair turning gray, and to have my youthful laughs be forever etched into deep grooves on my face. So many have never laughed, and so many have died before their hair could turn silver. As I age I find it much easier to be positive about life. You care less about what other people think, because I am the only one who has walked in my shoes. I don't even question myself anymore, like I used to because I've earned the right to be wrong and not worry about trying to justify it.

So, the answer to the BIG question, Yes I like my AGE!! It has set me FREE. I like the person I have become. I am not going to live forever, but while I am still here, I will not waste my time lamenting about what could have been, or worrying about what happened or even what will be, but I will live for the moment for so many didn't get a chance to enjoy.

Comments From: Wayne Egan

One's time in high school may be a penance. I know mine was. Although officially prohibited by Granite District, "exclusive" social clubs emerged at Olympus in 1961. I am aware of at least two such clubs—one seemed to me more elitist, admitting the likes of Steve Perkins, Tom Burton, John Durham, Wally Douglas, John Whitaker, Dave Child, et al., and the other group, The Tribithiens, comprised Rick Battison, Jack Adkins, Doug Wimmer, Bill Reed, Steve Chipman, Darrell Moench, Bob Willardsen, Hugh Coleman, et al. Because neither group was concerned with keeping the school flame burning, both refused to recruit Joey Frank and Lowell Baggeley, and neither group, as far as I could tell, accomplished anything memorable. After all, at age 17, self-publicity counts for more than mere achievement. I surmise the fellows in the more elite group seduced some actual coeds and boycotted sporting events while the Tribithiens mostly just talked about seduction and group-cheered at the games. I believe these dubious fraternities disagreed over the interpretation of human nature. The elite group, possibly unloved by their mothers, distrusted exuberance and sat poised
